02 — APPROACH

I do not paint to give answers. I create pictures that open up questions – about ourselves, our perception and how we want to shape the world.

The works of Stephan Graf Bentzel-Sturmfeder arise from the tension between intuition and construction, freedom and form, abstraction and figuration. His painting is immediate and powerful, yet marked by great sensitivity. Colour is not simply applied – it flows, overlaps, is broken, dissolved or re-framed by striking lines.

The result is pictorial space of great dynamism: poetic and full of energy, sometimes fragile, then uncompromising again. Suggested bodies, portraits and abstract structures merge into a visual language that resists quick interpretation. The works do not demand a single reading. Rather, they invite viewers to develop their own relationship with the picture.

His art follows no decorative intention. It seeks friction, resonance and emotional depth.
